Midsummer Deadline Hinted on Columbia

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA—U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall today indicated the U.S. will not wait past midsummer for an end to the Columbia River deadlock.

Mr. Udall, in Ottawa to attend a meeting of the joint U.S.-Canadian committee on trade and economic matters, met Justice Minister Fulton twice at social functions Friday.

The two men were the central figures in a bitter dispute late last year. Mr. Fulton accused Udall of working with B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett to arrange a "sell-out" of B.C. power resources.

'VERY AWKWARD'
Mr. Udall was asked if he had set a deadline for implementation of the Columbia River treaty, signed almost one year ago. He said there was no deadline, but added: "If by midsummer this thing is a dispute instead of a treaty, it will put us in a very awkward position. That is all I will say."

There was no sign that the two men had buried the hatchet.

Mr. Udall did say "I think we understand some facets of the problem better now," and that "I think also that we agree on the need to develop the facts more." He would not elaborate.

Mr. Udall said a dispute between Canada and the U.S. "is not going to get power for anyone."

"If necessary," he said, "we might have to make some adjustments to get the treaty to work." Again he would not elaborate.

Fire officials said the material on the walls was composed of a pressed pulp substance and contained sulphur which gave off fumes when burning.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

George Gregory may be president of the Vintage Car Club—but that's no museum piece he's driving today. In fact, it's an E Jag, a superior sports car which is said to be limited to production of 100 a year.

Jack Morgan, the arena manager, firmly believes that opening of Esquimalt Civic Centre has increased the number of skaters in Victoria. On a recent Sunday the Morgan's Memorial was loaded with 1,270 on the ice; another 550 were at Esquimalt. By simple arithmetic, Jack calculates that 550 more are skating in Victoria than before the opening of the suburban rink.

Recent Saturday night dance at the Empire Hotel saw Fred Usher and his Home Towners playing several different numbers suitable for the Twist, controversial dance craze that hit Victoria shortly before the holidays.

After one "real cool" rendition, when teen-agers and grown-ups alike were limping and gasping their way back to their seats, a well-known city doctor walked up to the orchestra and said: "Play an encore, Fred; it might bring me some new customers."

Al Smith, the "man of a million musical memories" at C.W.I., was once challenged to play 374 requests in a six-hour period.

Al paid out a dime at the end of the program. It wasn't the money that bothered him—it was the fact that he remembered the two requests the moment the show went off the air!

Ed Steele, 1021 Cook Street, thinks the designers of the centennial stamp are missing a bet by not featuring the late lamented "Bird Cage" Buildings, first Victoria home of the B.C. legislature, instead of Craigdarroch Castle.

Mr. Steele has been a Victorian since 1929, was once a legislative page boy.

Dave MacKenzie, headmaster of Brentwood College at Mill Bay, will be interviewed over KOMO-TV (Channel 4) Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, with a repeat the following Thursday at 7:30 a.m. Dave will show the Americans—and particularly interviewer Marty Camp—why Canadian prep schools make their boys indulge in cross-country runs and rugby. His explanation: "It makes them think and follow orders!"

Former Victoria postmaster Robert F. Reid has received a nice promotion. Most recently at Saskatoon, he has been moved up to the position of postmaster 17 at Vancouver.

During the recent visit to Japan of Her Royal Highness Princess Alexandra of Kent, the princess returned a gift presented to the emperor more than 30 years ago and taken away again in the period of war.

It was in 1929 that the Duke of Gloucester visited Japan and presented the Order of the Garter, Britain's highest order, to Emperor Hirohito. During the war, Britain struck the emperor's name off the roll of members of the Order of the Garter. It was restored on the occasion of Princess Alexandra's visit.

In its December international edition, the powerful Japanese Mainichi Daily News tells proudly that "at the welcome banquet given in honor of the princess at the Imperial Palace, the emperor appeared wearing the Order of the Garter."

In case there's any doubt about where the B.C. Division, Retail Merchants' Association of Canada stands on the question of trading stamps, there's today's press release:

And then there was the husband who, on learning his wife was expecting a baby, started to save trading stamps for a crib and baby carriage.

He made it, too, except by the time he had saved enough, "baby" was in first year of school.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

City Powerless to Stop Supermarket Stamp Plan

(Compiled from CP)

VANCOUVER—An alderman and the city licence inspector acted Friday to ban trading stamps from Vancouver, but the corporation solicitor said there is nothing the city can do.

Licensee inspector Milton Harrell said he had delayed approval of a licence renewal application made by Shop-Easy Stores, one of two grocery firms in the city which have introduced trading stamp schemes, pending a decision by council.

Alderman Halford Wilson gave notice that he will ask council Tuesday to withdraw trade licences from any other firms which embark on such stamp schemes.

Solicitor Russell K. Baker said in a report to council, however, the city has no power to refuse licences or revoke them unless the schemes are unlawful under the Criminal Code. The Code does not prohibit stamp schemes run by the stores themselves.

The second firm which has introduced such a scheme in Vancouver, Super-Value stores, received a one-year licence renewal in December. A third chain, Loblaw's, has introduced a similar scheme at a store in suburban Burnaby.

Thirty organizations, including department stores and trade associations, took advertising space in Vancouver newspapers Friday to protest the use of trading stamps.

FIRE WRECKS PLANT

PRINCE GEORGE—Fire early today destroyed the Cariboo Meat Packing Company Limited plant located about two miles west of here.

Early estimates place the loss of the plant at $100,000.

The fire was first spotted by an RCMP patrol in the area and had levelled the plant within three hours.

WARRANT ISSUED

PENTICTON—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Clifford Moore, former president of the New Hope Benevolent Society, RCMP said Friday.

The charge says only that Moore "did unlawfully defraud the public" between Dec. 1, 1960, and March 15, 1961.

Police said Moore, formerly of Penticton, was last reported in Australia. There would be no attempt to extradite Moore but the warrant would be executed if he returned to Canada.

Moore, the founder of Boys' Town, a ranch for underprivileged boys here since 1958, was found innocent of charges of violation of the Provincial Securities Act here recently.

The barking roused Walter Speedy, 42, a machinist, who opened the front door of his apartment and found three sticks of dynamite at the end of a sizzling fuse.

Speedy tried to douse the bomb, then hurled it to the side seconds before it exploded. The blast shattered all the windows of the three

Thompson, who has had two private sessions totalling 5½ hours with Gromyko to probe Soviet intentions on Berlin, received Sir Frank Roberts of Britain, Maurice Dejean of France and Hans Kröll of West Germany in his office here.

Nothing has been disclosed of what Gromyko told Thompson.

The U.S. envoy told reporters he could say nothing about the meeting but he expected to have more talks with Gromyko.

Textbook on Amalgamation

NEW VITALITY HAS BEEN injected into efforts to establish some unified form of local government for the Greater Victoria community. Whether amalgamation is preferable to a metro system is a question for study, and those concerned, particularly Reeve Stanley Murphy in Saanich and Mayor Dick Wilson, have no intention of jumping into the issue without thought.

They have a substantial body of material to guide them in decisions. Just over three years ago Dr. J. J. Deutsch undertook painstaking research on the proposal to weld Saanich and Victoria into one civic or municipal unit. Dr. Deutsch favored amalgamation. He foresaw some difficulties and some transitory disadvantages in such a merger. But he was convinced, on the evidence he assembled, that union would work for the long-term benefit of both.

His report provided the background against which municipal voters in Victoria and Saanich marked ballots for or against amalgamation in December, 1958. In the vote Victorians were two-to-one in favor of the merger principle presented to them. Before any action was taken, they would have been required to vote again on acceptance of an actual contract. Saanich, where the vote was binding and would have given the council authority to merge without a further expression of public opinion, turned the issue down two-to-one.

Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner

IN THE DEATH OF THE RT. HON. JAMES G. GARDINER this country has lost a great Canadian. He made many enemies. His critics were innumerable. But for at least a generation he was the image of the western farmer in politics.

A sort of prairie ambassador to Ottawa, he had been accused of ruling his own special empire within the country. As one of the ablest debaters and a speaker of force and great ability he often carried agricultural policy through to the embarrassment of his prime minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, and colleagues. He spoke at all times with a thorough knowledge of what he was talking about, with an incomparable understanding of prairie problems and with a touch which held farmer

The Deutsch report is still available. Perhaps some of the material contained in it would have to be updated before its terms were exactly applicable to the situation today. The principles involved in his survey and recommendations, however, are as cogent today as they were in 1958.

Certainly the document provides a textbook on the question for current study. But it will not be sufficient for councils to satisfy themselves on the desirability of union before the issue is referred to the public again. Most important, if both local governments agree on unification, will be an educational campaign to inform the residents of the two districts on the merits and problems involved.

Victoria, in 1958, did an excellent job of public education. Saanich, on the other hand, left something to be desired. And when the reeve of the time, Mr. George Chaterton, announced a few days before the voting that his head said "yes" to amalgamation but his heart said "no," he unquestionably encouraged a negative vote.

As interest is revived in the general question by Reeve Murphy and others, one of the important messages that must be conveyed to the public is that union, whatever its form, is a matter for considered action, not emotional response. Reeve Murphy has an excellent opportunity to hammer home that point at least as an early move in his current campaign.

audiences close to small platforms in remote areas of the wheatlands as well as politicians at their desks in Parliament.

His, on occasion, were the battering ram tactics, though he knew when to withdraw strategically.

History will assess the contribution made by "Jimmy" Gardiner to Canada, recognizing him as a masterly politician and considerably more, a key figure in the King regime, a staunch party man.

Today his friends remember him better as a person, a man of charm, humor and nimble wit, an individual of energy and enthusiasm in interests that ran from politics to baseball.

With his passing something native, indigenous and potent has gone from Canadian life.

Irresponsible Talk

THE CIVIL DEFENCE CO-ordinator in Nanaimo has wisely apologized for his accusation that Dr. Brock Chisholm is a tool of Communist Russia. It will be a sorry day when a man of Dr. Chisholm's stature must be so vilified for his interest in world peace and his sincere efforts to achieve it. It goes

Suggesting a Balance

MR. WILLIAM S. LITTERICK, president of Keuka College, Keuka Park, New York, has struck a balance for his students.

In effect, he says, this isn't the time to throw in the towel.

Science has created an instrument which could eliminate humanity, but science has also made advances which could greatly improve the lot of all mankind.

Some of the books, magazines and entertainment made widely available today are sordid, cheap and nasty. But never before have

'Skid Row'—Not All Derelicts

IT IS A COMMON BELIEF THAT Skid Rows exist in cities because there is no other place for derelicts and alcoholics, to go, and that if there were no derelicts or alcoholics there would be no Skid Rows.

The opinion needs amendment. According to a penetrating survey in Chicago only about one-third of its Skid Row residents are heavy drinkers. About 40 per cent are abstainers or light drinkers and about 25 per cent moderate drinkers.

Moreover, many of the people who live in the rundown districts where "flophouses" abound are there not because they are the victims of drink or are unsavory characters. They live in such places because that is all they can afford to pay for in the way of housing.

The quiet Chicago study indicates that low-cost housing of a decent type in better neighborhoods will draw a substantial percentage of Skid Row residents from the slum district. Other programs, of course, are needed to handle the man who is there because of a drinking problem or some other stigma.

The findings may have little application to a city like Victoria where what is called "urban blight" has not reached the proportions of big city slums. At the same time it is a point to keep in mind if parts of Victoria now suffering from age and decay are to avoid the ultimate slide into "Skid Row."

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A leisurely ramble in the area behind the cabin at Francis Park can be rewarding.

This area is practically free from undergrowth, and there are numerous rocky, moss-covered outcrops. Some of these are circular in shape, others drop off with a sharp cliff-like formation and there you can see the Polypody. The sedum is mingled with the mosses, each with its own particular shade of green.

Along the margin of the small swamps you can find the Indian Plum with its leaves showing green. Soon it will be in bloom. The Salmon berries are beginning to show their tiny leaves through the bud casings, and if you look closely you will see the white of the Willow buds.

The red Osier Dogwood has taken on a different sheen, some showing red, others with the bright green that stands out against the ragged heads of last year's bloom of the Hardack.

In this locality you can see some old Douglas firs with many lower branches that are almost as thick as the trunk.

Miners Lettuce: The Spring Gold with its lace-like leaves is coming up from its winter sleep. The bluish mottled leaves of the Rattlesnake plant are plain to see and the Skunk cabbage spikes are showing along the margin of the swampy ground. The Soopolallie shrub has put forth its greenish flowers that seem to hide under the coppery colored leaves.

Cheers for Britain, But No Money for British Goods

IT is difficult to understand why anyone should be surprised when a British firm cannot get a contract for the engines of two ferries being built in Victoria for the British Columbia government.

The British government professes to be incredulous, since its tender for this contract was substantially below a successful Canadian tender, but the statesmen and officials in London are not that innocent. They know, of course, that Canada's policy is not to import any more British goods than is absolutely necessary.

The whole purpose of Canada's shipbuilding subsidy, and its ejection of British ships from the St. Lawrence Seaway's domestic traffic, was to provide business, profits and employment for Canadians. And the victim deliberately selected for the government's policy was Britain.

THIS particular scheme of protection would collapse if Britain were allowed to get ship or engine contracts just because it submitted the lowest tender—that is to say, if Canada got the cheapest possible ships and Britain got fair entry into our Canadian markets.

It is said that Mr. Bennett has saved a lot of money on his ferries because they are subsidized by the federal government. Any child who can do first-primer arithmetic will see at once the fallacy of this calculation. For who will pay the subsidy? No one but the Canadian taxpayers, who include the people of British Columbia.

When any local cost is handed on to the federal government it returns to the local taxpayers immediately in their tax bills from Ottawa. There simply is no way for any Canadian to escape federal expenditures, or the extra prices imposed by tariffs or subsidies on any commodity whatever.

THE rejection of a low British bid for some ferry engines is a very small matter in itself. As a vivid demonstration of Canadian policy toward Britain it is a very large matter and will be so regarded in London, especially at this particular moment.

The Canadian and British governments have been quarreling bitterly in public, and more bitterly in private, over Britain's intended entry into the European Common Market.

The Wild Blue Yonder

IT is a bitter blow to the trial-going public that Mr. Justice Wilson has been translated to that cloudy heaven of juristic concepts, the British Columbia Court of Appeal. No longer will his statements and pithy aphorisms delight the ears of experienced court attenders. No more will juries settle down with anticipation to hear his lordship's special brand of concise, humane instruction in the law.

He will be sadly missed. There will be no more unadulterated Wilson; instead, there will only be a seventh, a fifth, or at best, a third portion of a remote and glacial tribunal, whose incomprehensible deliberations take place in cloistered solitude; the public is indeed free to attend, if not actually welcomed by the Court of Appeal, but somehow there the judicial process takes on a certain droning quality which no man can withstand for long.

Perhaps it can be changed, let us hope so. No doubt the minister of justice had ideas of a reform of this sort in his mind when he made the appointment. Let us hope that his expectations will be justified.

Somehow I doubt if they will. Many a good man has succumbed to the prevailing atmosphere of the Court of Appeal. Indeed, it is well nigh impossible for a judge of that court to avoid retiring into glazed impassivity, exposed as he is to a seemingly endless stream of unctuous and flabby argument.

Being continually faced with cold omelettes is a sore trial to anyone accustomed to honest eggs. Mr. Justice Wilson will, of course, retire like a man. More power, and good luck to him!

. . . REPORTING

OTTAWA — Two great groups of self-employed persons, the farmers and the fishermen, are an incubus around the neck of any government when it comes to increasing old age pensions. The reason: most farmers and fishermen don't pull their weight in paying taxes to finance old age pensions.

The Liberals' old age security proposal would get around this difficulty. The plan would be compulsory for wage earners, but optional for the self-employed. Thus farmers and fishermen would not get a free ride; to benefit from contributory social security they would have to choose to contribute.

Pearson recently termed "irresponsible" the New Democratic Party's pledge to raise old age pensions to $75 a month. He described as "responsible" his plan to provide at least $75 a month — the total of old age pensions and contributory benefits — to persons over 70.

The fairness of contributory benefits is that they come to the beneficiary as of right; they are actually postponed income. In contrast, existing old age pensions are paid out of money collected through taxation, and go to all equally, irrespective of whether the beneficiary has been liable to the special social security tax or not.

We now know what the NDP promises and what the Liberals promise. We should know next Thursday from the contents of the Throne Speech, what the government intends to do: whether it will propose an increase in the present pension rates, whether it will bring in a plan for contributory retirement benefits as it promised in the 1958 election campaign, or whether it will do both.

At any time since 1908 any Canadian resident could have bought a government annuity, making regular payments to obtain on retirement the same kind of benefits envisaged in the "new" Liberal plan.

In effect, the Pearson social security proposal is little more than a proposal to make government annuities compulsory. Aside from this feature, there seem to be only two essential differences between the Pearson plan and present voluntary government annuities. One is that half the premium payable on behalf of wage earners would be paid by employers. The other is that part of the premiums you and I pay would be used to provide unearned minimum benefits of $20 a month to persons who at the time the scheme started would be over 70, or so close to 70 that their contributions would not build up an equity worth $20 a month.

I think the idea of compulsory contributory retirement benefits is fine. I'll like it whether the Grits or the Tories implement it. But let's not kid ourselves — it's only the idea Sir Richard Cartwright had Parliament enact 54 years ago, but on a compulsory basis with a few modern trimmings.

Sir Richard, by the way, was a Liberal.

Speculation suggests the Conservatives will do both, especially now that the Liberals have stolen a march on them with the Pearson plan. Political sources talk of an old age pension increase of "at least $10 a month," with a contributory plan on top of that. It will be simpler for the Tories to match the plan Pearson has offered, because this kind of benefit doesn't cost the government any money: the prospective beneficiaries pay its cost out of their pay cheques.

VICIOUS CONFLICT IN ALGERIA DESERT, CITIES

French Caught in Middle Of Settlers and Rebels

ALGIERS (AP) — French authorities were waging a struggle today on two points in Algeria, caught between die-hard European settlers and Moslem rebels.

Savage ambushes by set French troops charged with holding down Moslem forces on the FLN National Liberation Front in the North African territory, and in the cities police vainly try to combat rising terrorism from the right-wing secret army determined to keep Algeria French.

There was no sign, however, that the French and the Algerian nationalist rebels were heading towards agreement.

17 PERSONS DIE

At least 17 persons were killed and 23 were wounded in the territory Friday.

Plastic bombs, the trademark of the secret army, blasted business establishments of owners who refused to pay tribute to the right-wing cause. Moslem terrorists struck down Europeans and attacked their own people who declined to help fill rebel coffers.

The secret army stepped up what appeared to be a psychological campaign in clandestine radio broadcasts. Code sentences were read out with all the drama of the Second World War's cross-channel messages to Nazi-occupied Europe.

"We're ready for it any time the Diefenbaker government chooses to call an election," Mr. Thompson said.

He said support for the party in Quebec is particularly strong because Social Credit is filling a political vacuum that came into being when the Union Nationale government fell.

SEES DISPUTE SETTLED

Asked which party Social Credit expected the most trouble from during the federal campaign, Mr. Bennett said the Progressive Conservatives would probably be the main opponents.

Mr. Bennett said he thought the present dispute between B.C. and Ottawa over development of the Columbia River power would be settled before the election.

The party plans, for the first time in its history, to field a full slate of 256 candidates in the next federal election. In Quebec some 27 candidates have already been named and nine have been chosen in Ontario. A total of 52 Social Creditors have been chosen across Canada.

As Algeria Eruption Draws Near

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ORAN (AP) — Virtually powerless and infiltrated by agents of right-wing terrorists, the French administration pleads for help and prays for a miracle in Algeria's second city.

Oran, a city of 400,000, is no longer controlled by the officials sheltered in government buildings guarded by tommy-guns of riot troops.

The Secret Army Organization of right-wing French extremists reigns in European quarters. The Algerian rebels' National Liberation Front — the FLN — dominates the Moslem areas surrounded by cordon of French troops.

Death by terrorism strikes an average of five times a day in Oran. The Moslems fight with daggers, pistols and grenades, the Europeans with plastic bombs and machine-guns.

Frequently, a Moslem attack sparks a European riot and the lynching of any Moslem found in the path of the surging crowd.

Laos Peace Hopes Fade

VIENTIANE (AP) — The royal Lao government today dimmed prospects of success for the Geneva conference of rival Lao princes, saying it will never give up two key cabinet posts in a proposed coalition government of national unity.

One the eve of Premier Prince Boun Oum's departure for Geneva, a cabinet spokesman said the royal government "will never yield" the defense and interior ministry posts to neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma's faction. It fears they would soon fall under the influence of Souvanna's half-brother and pro-Communist ally, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the Pathet Lao.

Boun Oum has resisted strong pressures from the Western allies to get together with the two other princes. The dispute over cabinet assignments broke up the carefully prepared Vientiane summit conference last month.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

It is a cold day, but although I walk more than most people I know, I shall not be out of doors more than an hour altogether. Indoors I have heating, plumbing and electricity. You are not surprised? Today even writers enjoy these benefits. But I am thinking about the first explorers of Canada, who lacked the barest comfort.

For shelter they could push into a crowded wigwam in which the wood smoke was so acrid that their eyes soon became raw; to get a breath of air which did not tear at the throat it was necessary to put your mouth close to the ground; there was no artificial light of any sort.

Yet the Indians walked about half naked in the intense cold, and the French explorers reported that they suffered less than from the damper cold of Europe.

I am thinking about Cartier, who sees the greatness of what Sagard did.

He finds something to praise even in Etienne Brûlé, who "went native," acquiring the least admirable characteristics of the Indians, and keeping the vices he brought from sixteenth century France!

Morris Bishop is a creature in modern academic life, a mighty praiser. He unashamedly loves Champlain for his virtue and bravery. As a modern scholar must, he suggests that the motives that brought Gabriel Sagard to these shores as a missionary

A Palate for the Repulsive

The Indians were Stone Age people whose civilization, within its limits, was highly developed. Their land was covered with awesome forest, in which pines mounted to 125 feet before their lowest branches might be seen, and the giants might reach a height of 250 feet.

The variety of game, fish and vegetables to be found everywhere amazed the French, but they were even more astonished by what the Indians did with this plenty.

Either the Stone Age had no palates, or palates quite unlike ours in kind. Their staple food was sagamite, a boiled mush of corn and rotten fish, unskinned and unguited.

Thievery, Lying Were Art Forms

These Stone Age men were, said Sagard, more intelligent than the peasants in his native land. Their life was lived in simplicity and repose, except in war-time; they were generous and humorous, aristocratic in their disregard of small mishaps.

They were terrible liars (a branch of oratory with them, as with us), and I regard thievery as an art-form. Worst, they delighted in torture, relishing the sheer, exquisite fun of seeing a fellow-creature break under pain. To destroy somebody's dignity, to make him lose face—that was the final victory.

As an introduction to the history of exploration in Canada, these lectures were admirable. The lecture is rarely discussed as an artistic achievement, although our continent has an unapproachable appetite for lectures, and the best lecturers are artists.

AMERICAN HERITAGE BOOK OF INDIANS, by the editors of American Heritage Magazine (Simon & Schuster, $15):

A panoramic story of the American Indian from earliest times (perhaps 20,000 years ago when he came from Asia to Alaska and then scattered through North and South America).

This is Indian history and lore for the reader who would like an over-all story of these ancient people and their various lives and customs before and since their collision with the European invasion of the New World.

The copious pictures, many in color, make this an attractive, instructive volume.

ART IN REVIEW

By ARTHUR CORRY

Great Printmaker Won Many Honors

For the many collectors and admirers of the prints by George Baxter, the Victoria Art Gallery is now exhibiting a collection of his work, on loan from the National Gallery in Ottawa. The collection was presented to Canada in memory of Mrs. J. Edward Evans' father, Mr. W. C. Jephcott, and represents George Baxter from his early work in the 1830's, to his finest combination of wood blocks and metal plates, printed in oil ink.

Queen Victoria gave Baxter the distinction of approving two of his most ambitious prints, "Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria receiving the Sacrament at her Coronation" and "The Arrival of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria at the House of Lords.

Corry to Open the First Parliament of her Reign." The artist himself was present at both occasions, and in preparation of facility.

In 1851 he opened a booth at the Great Exhibition held in Hyde Park, London. At the same time he published a little book called Baxter's Pictorial Key to the Great Exhibition and Visitor's Guide to London.

MEDALIST

Two or three years after he published his prints, "Gems of the Great Exhibition." His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Austria, to whom the prints were dedicated, presented George Baxter with the Great Gold Medal of Austria. He was honored with medals from the Great Exhibition of 1851, the New York Exhibition of 1853, the Paris Exhibition of 1855, and from the king of Sweden in 1857.

Morris Bishop believes in the nobility of the human spirit, and embraces us in the warmth of his belief. What a relief from the reductive, diminishing, belittling spirit of so much of the sour scholarship of our time!

BAXTER

Two or three years after he published his prints, "Gems of the Great Exhibition." His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Austria, to whom the prints were dedicated, presented George Baxter with the Great Gold Medal of Austria. He was honored with medals from the Great Exhibition of 1851, the New York Exhibition of 1853, the Paris Exhibition of 1855, and from the king of Sweden in 1857.

Mr. Baxter believed he invented this method of combination color printing and even held a patent, although nearly a century before the same method had been used by Edward Kirkland. However, Baxter carried his art to a perfection never before achieved.

In all, it is believed that Baxter produced well over 20 million prints, which pictured a "pretty" Victorian era. With this mass production the average citizen could well afford a print of Her Majesty the Queen, or one of the many fine children so beautifully presented.

CURLING CUES

By MATT BALDWIN
Three-time Canadian Champion

As you must know by now, the varied speed with which a rock is thrown is known as weight.

Guards, draws to the house, freezes, any of a wide variety of takeout weights . . . for any of these, you generally require a keen sense of the speed you are giving to a stone. There are many other situations too, like going out on green ice.

I find that it is an all too common fault among club skips to vary the weight for takeouts.

Most front end curlers are confused by the ice that their skip gives them. How many times have you seen a rock, a second, or even a third shake his head and wonder how fast to throw the stone?

This is a very real problem, and I think it should be dealt with, if all concerned are to derive the maximum enjoyment out of the game.

There is nothing more frustrating than to miss your shot, not knowing what you were really supposed to be doing to begin with.

I would suggest to the skip that he should have as few weights for takeouts as possible. Best of all, only one weight for the lead and second, and possibly two or three for the third.

At least the vice-skip is around to talk things over, and generally is more experienced than the front end curlers.

Players Must Know What's Going On

As you know, curling rinks are often put together for short bonspiels or have a roving from time to time. "So you can see the wisdom of asking for one consistent takeout weight, and making your men fully aware of the situation.

This should be pointed out to the curlers beforehand, and used all the time, if possible. But if for some important reason, you must change this, be sure to talk it over with your players.

However, you should take into account the ability of your curler, when asking him to alter his weight. After all, if he has a tough time drawing to the house, he won't have much idea about varying his takeout weights.

Of course, this does not apply to championship rinks as every position is filled by a very capable curler, and obviously the skip will know the capabilities of each.

So, you club skips decide on the weight you wish your men to employ. "Saving" weight if you are keenly interested in keeping your own rock in play, or something a good deal briskest if the main thing with you is to get rid of those enemy stones.

With a consistent system, you will be doing yourself and your players a favor.

ON THE ALLEYS

Bowlers Hit Stride; Nipp, Webb Sparkle

Tenpin topplers appear to be operating with increased efficiency since returning to action after the Christmas layoff.

Suggesting that competition will be the best in the history of the Victoria zone championships in March, the maple maulers were rolling high and handsome this week, with Sheldon Nipp and Wilbur Webb grabbing big shares of the spotlight.

Nipp equalled the high-triple mark of the season when he rolled games of 211, 255 and 188 for a 654 total at Aurora. Sheldon also added singles of 224 and 214 in a 504 series at Gibson's.

Webb chalked up a trio of noteworthy tallies at Aurora. He hit 613 (233) Tuesday, 614 (214, 211) Wednesday, and 591 (214) Thursday, for a nine-game average of 202.

DRAKES WIN TITLE

Larry Lomas hammered the pins for 224 and 225 singles on the way to a sharp 640 series at Aurora to help Drake Hotel nail-down the first-half title in the Gold Crown Senior circuit.

Deadlocked with Speedway Motors at the end of the first half, the Drakes settled things during a clash with Speedway. The four-player team rolled games of 736, 697 and 765 for

Arctic Oil Potential Seen High

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Arctic oil moving to world markets in pipelines or ice-breaker-escorted tanker fleets is envisaged in a report on northern Canadian petroleum prospects.

Sufficient reserves in the Archipelago and mainland Yukon and Northwest Territories—more than a third of all Canada—would enable Canada to become a major oil power, says the report by Dr. G. David Quirin, Alberta consultant who spent a year on the report for the department of northern affairs and national resources.

Resources Minister Dinsdale made public the report in an Edmonton speech Friday night.

Dr. Quirin went along with main areas as favorable to large oil and gas deposits—Fort Liard, Eagle Plain, the Mackenzie delta on the western mainland and the Queen Elizabeth Islands in the central archipelago.

“It is found in large quantities, mainland oil could compete successfully in California, Hawaii, Japan, Australia or New Zealand,” he said. It would be transported by tankers loaded at Skagway, Alaska, and fed by pipeline complexes.

Oil for Europe

Arctic oil—by surface or submarine carriers—could go to northern Europe. He ruled out pipelines as links for the islands where ice chokes the channels most of the year.

Oil is a surplus product currently but this will decline over the next 20 years, Dr. Quirin forecast. Demand should expand rapidly over the next 20 years.

Mainland gas could find U.S. markets in a new form—on which shipping experiments have been conducted—of liquid shipped at low temperatures.

Northern oil would not compete with Prairie output but perhaps could supply the Maritimes. More exploration is warranted, he said, to shape up the potential supply.

So far, more than 200 holes have been drilled north of the 60th parallel which forms the southern border of the Yukon and Northwest Territories. About 115 have been wildcats—first attempts to locate oil pools. Three wells have been brought in in the Yukon and the first drilling attempt in the Arctic islands, about 800 miles from the pole and 1,400 miles north of Edmonton, has passed the 10,000-foot stage.

The only oil field in operation is at Norman Wells on the Mackenzie River—discovered in 1920 and put into production in 1940.

U.S. Lumberman Would Curb B.C. Imports

SEATTLE (AP)—A lumber industry leader has told the government that British Columbia imports are threatening the United States west coast forest products industry.

W. G. Reed, chairman of the Simpson Timber Co., appealed to the commerce department for assistance in what he called the “unequal battle with B.C. imports.”

Reed submitted a brief to Clarence D. Martin, Jr., undersecretary of commerce for transportation.

He said invasion of American markets by B.C. lumber mills has become so threatening in the last three months “that only prompt action by the administration and Congress can avert economic calamity for lumber-dependent communities along the U.S. west coast.”

Reed said B.C. mills took 65 per cent of the U.S. Atlantic coast market in 1961 and their share rose to 68 per cent in November. He said B.C. shipped an estimated $11,000,000 board feet of lumber to the Atlantic coast market last year.

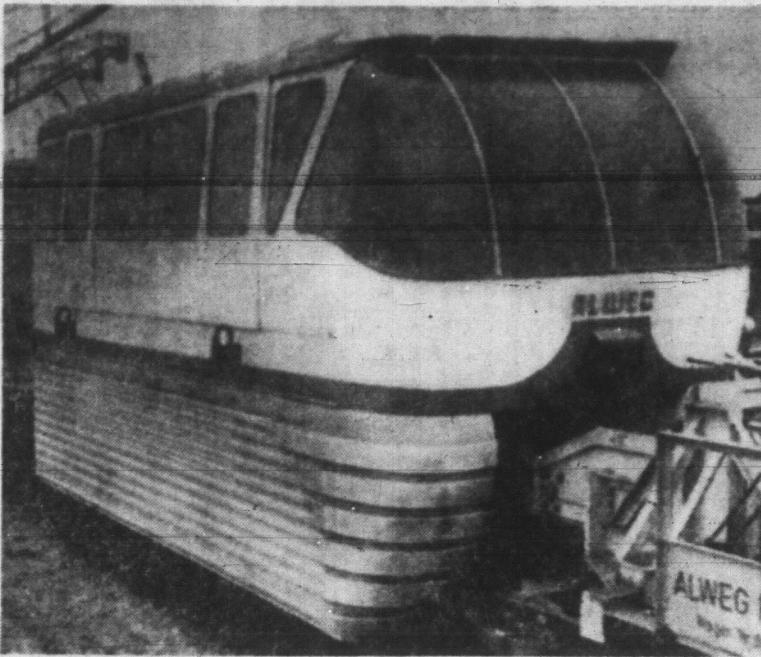

Reed attributed the situation to “unequal competitive conditions.”

Quotas Lifted On Grain Sales

OTTAWA (UPI)—For the first time in more than 10 years grain delivery quotas have been lifted in many parts of the prairie provinces, and producers are free to market as much grain as they wish. Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton announced this week.

Hamilton said quotas have been removed at about 500 delivery points in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta. British Columbia and Ontario also were affected.

Not since the 1950-51 crop year have farmers been able to deliver unrestricted quantities of their grain, he said. The open quotas policy now applies to about 25 per cent of all grain delivery points. The remaining points still are on quotas of from three to seven bushels per specified acre.

$150 MILLION IN SAVINGS SEEN

Railway Unions Assail Pennsy-Central Merger

NEW YORK (AP)—Directors have approved the merger of the giant Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads into a 20,300-mile Goliath with assets of $5,400,000,000.

The “economic necessity” plan dramatized financial ills that threaten major rail, air, highway and water segments of the U.S. transportation system, a $100,000,000,000-a-year industry.

Within hours of the plan’s approval, Friday at separate meetings of the Pennsylvania and Central boards, it was assailed by 20 railway labor unions as “catastrophic... in its potential effects.”

The railway brotherhoods fear elimination of jobs, one of the means by which the merging companies would hope to pare expenses between them.

The Pennsylvania and Central have about 120,000 employees.

BOTH IN RED

Latest published figures, covering the first 11 months of 1961, showed the Central nearly $16,000,000 and the Pennsylvania $2,700,000 in the red—although the Pennsy may have finished the year in the black.

Opposition to the proposed merger also was possible from the justice department, concerned with monopoly questions, from shippers and perhaps from competing railroads.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Speculatives Grab Spotlight

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Speculative mining issues, which have grabbed the spotlight on Canadian markets frequently in recent months, upstaged the rest of the market once again this week.

Featured performer was Northgate Explorations, a Canadian company with Irish holdings. Opening Monday at $2.45, by Friday it had more than doubled in price, closing at $5.15—up $1.50 on the day—after climbing as high as $5.30 on a turnover of 639,164 shares.

Northgate began spiraling skyward following rumors of a rich lead-silver find on its County Galway property in Ireland. Company officials later said each drill report showed “increasing tonnage potential.”

OTHERS ERRATIC

Other speculatives moved erratically. Lake Dufault, a favorite in past months, went ahead 40 cents to $7, and then lost 70 cents in three days.

Toronto moved in a 46-to-79 cents range and closed at 60 cents on heavy turnover. Early in the week, Andrew Robertson, president, said mineralization from a drill hole in the company’s British Columbia copper prospect did not appear to be ore grade.

Elsewhere on the market, industrials see-sawed between gains and losses. Motor issues showed the greatest fluctuation with Ford of Canada dropping $5.75 Thursday in light turnover. General Motors sagged 8½ cents, then climbed $1.50.

Canadian Breweries gained 75 cents on announcement of a planned five-for-one stock split.

In base metals issues, Ventures and Falconbridge fell sharply early in the week, then recovered strength. International Nickel moved from a $11.12 loss to a 37½-cent gain and other senior base metals were equally erratic.

Western oils saw increased activity in junior issues, but gains and losses were mostly fractional. One junior oil, Wayne Petroleum, was recorded on the exchange’s most active list. Goids were quiet.

Toronto moved in a 46-to-79 cents range and closed at 60 cents on heavy turnover. Early in the week, Andrew Robertson, president, said mineralization from a drill hole in the company’s British Columbia copper prospect did not appear to be ore grade.

Elsewhere on the market, industrials see-sawed between gains and losses. Motor issues showed the greatest fluctuation with Ford of Canada dropping $5.75 Thursday in light turnover. General Motors sagged 8½ cents, then climbed $1.50.

Canadian Breweries gained 75 cents on announcement of a planned five-for-one stock split.

In base metals issues, Ventures and Falconbridge fell sharply early in the week, then recovered strength. International Nickel moved from a $11.12 loss to a 37½-cent gain and other senior base metals were equally erratic.

Privacy Fine Feature In Bungalow Design

Here's a small three-bedroom house with some unusual features and a lot of privacy. Designed by architect J. de Keresztes of Montreal, it offers a large combination living-dining room with dimension of 23 feet, 4 inches by 11 feet, 10 inches.

A large living room window looks out over the patio that screens the main entrance to the house. The bedrooms are grouped at rear of house with a dressing room providing access to the bathroom. An open stairway leads to the basement from the central hall.

The floor area is 1,076 square feet and the exterior dimensions 24 feet, 4 inches by 44 feet, 2½ inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 2309, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trend in wallpaper patterns is toward a definite character of design to accentuate a particular furniture style, be it a formal traditional room, a rustic provincial room or a modern interior.

The Wall Paper Council says tone-on-tone wallpaper patterns are especially popular now. They have an understated room from the master bed-

BEASTALL ADVISES

Prepare Greenhouse Now For Season of Service

By JACK BEASTALL

The time has come for the owners of small greenhouses to roll up their sleeves, don the leather apron which identifies the head gardener, and seriously start work.

If the structure was not cleaned and scrubbed in the fall, that will be the first job to tackle.

Wash the glass inside and out so that the maximum of light will enter. There never is too much light in January, and the paucity of sunshine in the last few weeks has increased the need for spotless glass.

Sweep down the cobwebs and spider eggs from the roof, sides, and particularly under the benches. Then gather all the weeds and debris from the floor.

Wash the woodwork, rafters, up rights, benches and bench supports with hot water to which a disinfectant (such as lysol) and a pantha or bar soap (not detergents) has been added.

A long-handled window brush is useful for this part, permitting the use of hotter water and stronger disinfectant than could be tolerated by the bare hands. Watch the head of the brush carefully so that it does not go through the glass, and at the same time don't wreck the place with the other end of the handle.

In greenhouses without a heating system a soil heating cable will be found convenient for germinating seed, rooting cuttings and growing a handful of early vegetables such as radish, green onions and lettuce.

TWO PURPOSES

The standard cable covers an area six feet by three feet when spaced to the manufacturers' specifications, but with a little figuring it is possible to make the one cable serve more than one purpose.

For instance, one half of the heated area may have the cable at the standard spacing of six to eight inches and be used for germination, while the other half may be spaced double the distance to give a lesser heat for growing plants and rooting cuttings.

The base of the heated area is a sheet of galvanized iron or other sheet metal of suitable size, and the sides are of wood about six inches wide. This depth of six inches may be increased where needed by adding a removable unit with

DO IT NOW

Keep Winter Employment at Its Highest Possible Level

Now is the time to make improvements and repairs while skilled workers urgently need jobs. Workmen are now available for all types of work, painting, building, repairing, alterations. Have the work done now, during the winter slack period . . . keep business and employment going at full speed!

Victoria Daily Times SAT., JAN. 13, 1962 15

Time Is Ripe for Repair

If roof, masonry or paint-work is showing wear and tear, too many put off renovating from day to day and eventually get around to doing something when the job is much more extensive than it need have been.

As far as the season is concerned there is no time like the present for all such projects.

This is a time of year when the building craftsmen are less busy than in the spring, summer and fall. A decision to get under way now means a job quickly and efficiently done.

ANCIENT BASTION SQUARE COURTHOUSE SOON TO BE EMPTY RELIC

Victoria's old courthouse on Bastion Square is fast approaching the end of its 73-year history begun in 1889. Within the next few weeks staff and equipment will be moved into the spacious new building on Cathedral Hill, and the upheaval process is well under way. Above (from left) Percy McLaren, head janitor, straightens up papers in the Assize Court. He's had 24 years' service in the old building; Sheriff Eric Wilkinson (20 years' service), shows ancient ballot box used for picking jury panel since earliest days, and Bert Beaveridge, an employee since 1931, mans unique split-level elevator for which courthouse is famous—you go in at one door and emerge by another. Most of courthouse equipment will be moved by Jan. 30. (Times Photos by Irving Strickland.)

RAIN OR MOIST SNOW EXPECTED FOR SUNDAY

A weather system developing to the north of here is expected to give rain or wet snow by Sunday afternoon or evening, weatherman William Mackie said today.

A small storm expected to give snow here this afternoon instead produced a small flurry this morning, then gave a fall at Nanaimo which had reached one inch at Cassidy Airport by press time.

MONTE ROBERTS

There has been a great deal of loose talk lately about amalgamation in these parts.

The new mayor of Victoria, for one, and the reeve of Saanich, for another, appear to favor a union with one language, one set of laws, and one tax collector.

I have even heard it said that when the mayor of Victoria meets the reeve of Saanich on the street, the salutation is "Greetings, Gate, let's amalgamate."

This may be all very well for the chaps in Victoria and Saanich, and, for all I know, for the blokes in Esquimalt.

But for us citizens—pardon, residents, of Oak Bay—amalgamation is something which simply isn't done.

I mean, really.

(Perhaps I should explain I am just a resident of Oak Bay, not a citizen, because I have only been back here for six months after violating the continuous residence clause. However, Oak Bay has been kind enough to issue a permanent visa for my border crossing card, so I am bold enough to consider myself an almost-citizen. (Perhaps. Sometime. Eventually?)

Nevertheless, I have the temerity to speak for Oak Bay on the question of amalgamation.

It is admitted it might be a jolly fine idea to have Saanich, Victoria, Esquimalt, and Oak Bay (notice how Oak Bay is listed last? We're modest that way) operate as a single municipal unit.

But is amalgamation the answer?

Heavens, no.

Annexation, perhaps. Amalgamation, never.

If the circumstances and conditions appear right, at the right time, and possibly eventually, Oak Bay MIGHT—I say "might" advisedly—consent to annex Victoria, Saanich, and Esquimalt.

Thus bringing a touch of civilization to the neighboring colonies.

Even as an almost-citizen, pro-tem, acting, temporary, unpaid, I feel I should point out this fact, which is fast becoming a tradition:

Two most recent mayors of Victoria have had the good sense to maintain their residences in Oak Bay.

As soon as the reeve of Saanich and the reeve of Esquimalt follow this same sensible course, Oak Bay may possibly consider annexation of Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt.

But don't come around here talking about amalgamation.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What does the expression "73" mean when put at the bottom of a letter over the signature? D.S.

A. "73" is a code number used by telegraphists since the First World War in order to save time meaning "best wishes." The code is still used by ham radio operators today.

LUMBER SHIPMENTS GROW

Banner Year for City's Docks

Victoria's deep-sea docks in 1961 had their busiest year since the glamorous days of the "White Empresses," the Canadian-Australasian line, and the "Alexander" ships.

Credit for the banner year goes mainly to lumber, of which 174,000,000 board feet was loaded to top 1960's 128,000,000 board feet by a wide margin.

Total number of ships using Ogden Point lumber, general cargo, and grain docks, and Esquimalt Harbor's heavy-lift crane and graving dock was 375, as against 353 ships in 1960.

Steady growth of deep-sea shipping in the years following the Second World War is illustrated by the fact only 162 blue-water ships docked here in 1948; in 1951, the figure was 230, and in 1958 the 300 mark was reached.

Last year's accelerated lumber business is in part due to the development of "packaged" lumber for export to the Atlantic Seaboard, where it is held in great favor due to ease and speed of handling.

Canada's grain agreement with Red China was reflected at Victoria Grain Elevator Ltd., which made no direct shipments to China but benefited from ships diverted from Vancouver and New Westminster. The elevator, which can process 1,000,000 bushels per month, worked at near capacity throughout the year.

Missionary Roles Switched As Asians Help New York

NEW YORK (AP) — In a reversal of missionary living, Southeast Asian Christians have sent gift of $1,000 to a church situated in the heart of this capital of affluence.

If the gift itself seems unusual, the church that received it may appear even more so. "Our activities are related to the culture around us," said its pastor, Rev. Howard Moody.

That culture is well known. Judson Memorial Church is located in Greenwich Village, haven of the unorthodox.

The pastor admits, in the parlance of his congregation, that "some of our critics consider us way out."

"Our church is oriented basically for those who aren't members of it," explained Moody, a 40-year-old intellectual who can discuss Christianity or poetry with his flock in their own swinging language.

The pastor is at a loss to explain how the East Asia Christian Conference, donor of the $1,000, heard of his church.

Fashionable Beauty Begins With Cosmetics

By PENNY SAVER

It's here gals! Something many of us have longed for, but never dared hope would be manufactured. Beginning to wonder? It's a lipstick and lip liner all in one. Sound far-fetched? It isn't. It's a tube, twice as long and only half as thick as regular lipstick that, because of its dimensions, eliminates the need for a lip brush. No practice needed either, just apply as you would regular lipstick.

Made in 12 colors, including tones predominately brown, blue and pink, it is in a gold-colored case that looks very much like a mascara tube, dandy for carrying in small evening bags. Price is nice too, only $1.75, with refills selling for $1.25.

If you're having trouble with your skin, especially after all the rich foods most of us have been eating for the past month, I would suggest you look into the medicated make-up I've seen. This make-up has a dual purpose, a lovely smooth textured finish that covers blemishes and a medication that heals.

It's produced in several shades from a deep tan tone to a bluish pink hue. This wonderful face saver is selling at $1.75 for a one-ounce bottle.

Looking for a skin lubricant or moisturizer that can be emulsion that is lubricating yet greaseless. You smooth it on at night for deep lubrication and apply before make-up in the morning. Made by a leading cosmetic firm, the lotion will be counted among the most valuable of your beauty aids—after you've tried it. Price is $3.75 for two-ounce bottle.

If you've ever been at a loss as to know what to do about dry skin on heels and elbows, you're probably not alone. And now there is an answer to this problem. It's a cream that removes the dry skin easily. You simply put a few drops on your fingertips, rub it on the area until the dry skin comes off. This cream can be used as often as necessary. It contains no alcohol and is non-irritating. You'll like the price too, one and three-quarter ounces, $1.25.

Call me soon and I'll give you the names of the shops I visited today.

FOLD PATTERN PARTS FOR EASY REFERENCE

Winner of this week's press-ing board award is Mrs. Eunice Farmer, St. Louis, Mo., who sends this suggestion.

"After cutting my garment, I refold each piece of the pattern to a uniform size with the name of each section on top, such as front, back, collar, etc. When I have to go back to refer to any piece of the pattern, which we all have to do frequently, it saves a lot of time and patience."

NAP SHOULD RUN UP ON ALL GARMENT PIECES

Dear Readers:

Once again I am going to explain the directional cutting of fabric with nap. Because of the volume of mail received about this one particular question, I hope you will all save this for easy reference.

Velvet, velveteen and corduroy are fabrics with "nap" or pile, and all of the pieces of your garment must be cut in the same direction. These fabrics should be cut with the "nap" running up. If you hold the fabric up to yourself, it should feel "rough" as you run your hand from your shoulder down to your waist.

Once you have determined the correct direction, place arrows on the wrong side of the fabric near the selvage with marking chalk. After the larger pieces of your garment have been cut, you will still know the correct way to cut any additional pieces because of the directional arrows.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By NONA DAMASKE

News Items Dictate Style Trends

NEW YORK—Big New York news always creeps into the fashion presentations, and this season we are finding two widely separated items being mentioned in almost every show.

The Rembrandt Contemplating the Bust of Homer, which Damaske is valued at over $2,300,000 and is at present hanging in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, has been the inspiration for some glorious colors. In some cases, the Rembrandt period is the inspiration for silhouettes.

Other news—and I can't help but feel ridiculous mentioning it in the same breath, is "The Twist." The Twist first saw the light of day—on should I say the dark of night—at New York's Peppermint Lounge. Twist dresses, hats, jewelry, hairdos and peppermint colors pop up in many of the comediettes and releases.

I intend to visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art and The Peppermint Lounge and will tell you all about that at a later date.

Fashion for spring, 1962, does not make you gasp because you know that clothes are as attractive and feminine as any one could wish.

The "she" element is a prophetic mood for spring and summer, 1962.

The waistline is the main theme of the current fashion collections. Some designers mark the waist high and gently. Others score it twice, at the top and base of a wide set-in midriff. Some sash it lightly, others cinch it with a wide belt. Some compromise by slanting it diagonally, high front to low back or side-to-side.

Bill Blass, designer for Maurice Rennier and winner of the 1961 Coty award, rockets his waistlines upward and allows them to just gently skin the figure. Fabrics used by this designer are gorgeous... chiffon wools, as light as air, and silk in all the glory of its subtle coloring.

Bill Blass designed the clothes, which Gene Tierney wears in the movie, "Advice and Consent."

A few moments before the beginning of the Adele Simpson show, an ordinary wooden apple box topped by two copies of Harper's Bazaar was arranged at the speaker's podium. From these arrangements we knew that Mrs. Simpson was going to commentate her own show... this clever designer is barely five feet tall.

Adele Simpson referred to her clothes as her "air lift collection" since this world-minded designer spends as much time in the air on route to India, Japan or Peru in search of fresh fashion thoughts, as she does in her own studio. "Why thumb

Q. "I am going to hold my daily calorie count to 1,200 a day?"

A. No, not so far as weight loss is concerned. But what you eat is most important from the standpoint of both health and beauty.

If you would like to join Marathon, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the Marathon booklet. You can lose up to 20 pounds. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

A. Steam baths will not reduce you. You will lose pounds, but this is only a water loss and is temporary. It is not a loss of fat.

Q. "Should I keep my girdle on when exercising?"

A. No. Exercise without your girdle and wear comfortable clothing which does not bind.

Q. "Should I weigh myself every day?"

A. Do not weigh every day. This is discouraging. I know how anxious you are to see the scales begin to move in the right direction, but the best plan is to weigh once a week. At least let a few days pass between weighings.

Q. "When shall I begin Marathon?"

A. Just as soon as you receive your booklet, which will give you all the direction and information you require. We are working night and day to get this to all Marathon entrants as soon as possible, but because of the thousands of requests the time of receiving these will vary. Once you have your booklet, do not procrastinate, but begin the very next day.

Q. "I am going to hold my daily calorie intake to 1,200 calories a day. Does it matter how I divide them?"

A. So far as loss of weight is concerned, it does not matter so long as you stick to your allowance every 24 hours. However, studies have shown that the most successful reducers divide their calories between three meals a day. You may save fruit or a glass of milk or fruit or tomato juice or some such item for in-between meals.

Q. "Does it matter what I

DEAR ABBY . . .

Start at the Beginning, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN-BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen years ago I left home (at the age of 20) to have a baby. (I was not married.) No one here knows about it, I passed myself off as a widow and raised my son alone. He is a fine well-adjusted lad. His father was a married man from whom I neither expected nor received any financial help in raising my boy. I have a very good name for myself in my community where I am known as "Mrs. So and So."

A prominent, successful man has become my admirer and he wants to marry me. I know I will have to tell him the truth about myself, but what about other people?

There might be curiosity and probing about my "former husband," his family, etc.

certificate "Mrs. So and So," although I am not in fact legally that person?

MRS. SO AND SO.

DEAR MRS. SO AND SO: First, tell the man who wants to marry you about your past. If he loves you, it won't matter, and he will spare you the legal red-tape.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married soon. I would like to have a double-ring ceremony. The problem is that my future husband already wears a wedding ring on that very special finger. It was his mother's wedding ring. (She is now deceased.) He told me that he will never take that ring from his finger because she placed it there. Do you think this was fair of her?

AROUND THE ISLAND

50th Birthday
Links With Fair

DUNCAN—Instead of having the city embark on a scheme of its own, Duncan city council is considering linking its 50th anniversary celebrations this year with the annual fall fair of Cowichan Exhibition Association.

The society made the suggestion that the fair would be a "grand occasion" on which to mark the city's jubilee.

"Fifty years isn't such a long time, and we do not want the kind of publicity Victoria has had over its centenary," said Mayor Jack Dobson. "I don't feel like recommending the spending of a huge sum of money on celebrations. I'd rather see it spent on something which will benefit the town."

Ald. James Saunders suggested that, considering the recent installation of sewers in the city, the money be spent on resurfacing streets.

ZEBALLOS—Drilling is expected to start shortly at the International Iron open pit mine being developed here.

A four-ton charge of dynamite was used two weeks ago to lift the overburden on the ore body, which is not yet exposed.

One will be trucked to a crusher, then taken by a trolley to a mill for final processing. There is provision for a stock pile of 100,000 tons.

CAMPBELL RIVER—University overcrowding and the problems to be faced by higher education in the near future are topics to be discussed at a public education meeting in the Campbell River Junior Senior High School Thursday.

"Any one with a child who may wish to go to university should be at the meeting," said Jack Caldwell, a member of the local UBC alumni group, which is interested in the problem.

It is almost impossible to realize how serious the situation is, and unless steps are taken at once, a great many of our students are going to be denied a university education," he said.

Main speaker at the meeting will be Roderick Hal-Brown. Other speakers will include Professor R. J. Bishop, head of the English department at Victoria College, and high school principal James Smith, who will speak about the relative merits of senior matriculation.

LADYSMITH—The Lady Smith Chamber of Commerce is studying the possibility of making Ladysmith into a modern seaport.

Two freighters have come here to load lumber for Japan in the last two months but a chamber spokesman said mooring facilities "leave much to be desired."

He feared no more ships would come if facilities are not improved.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Navy League Day will be celebrated here Thursday when Lt.-Cmdr. William Bowditch will inspect the Sea Cadet Corps.

Inspection will take place in the Community Hall at 7 p.m.

DUNCAN—Trustee Will Peck, member of Cowichan District 65 School Board for the past six years, this week was appointed board chairman, with Truste Harold Whitfield as his vice-chairman.

Mr. Peck has been chairman of the board's building committee and had a prominent role recently as chairman of the Vancouver Island zone joint committee on teachers' salaries.

Mr. Peck is the son of former trustee Don Peck, a board member for several years until resigning his post in 1950.

Trustee endorsed an application by Cowichan Radio Development Company to the Board of Broadcast Governors for a licence to operate a radio station in the city.

Some criticism came from

190 ENTRIES

Canary Show
Sets Record

A record-breaking 190 entries were attracted to the fourth annual Vancouver Island roller canary show concluding today at the C and C Hall on Government Street.

In addition to owners from B.C., breeders came from Edmonton, Calgary, Penticton and Seattle.

"Rollers," said Ted Oakley, who had the task of judging every bird, "have a good song life of from three to four years but will sing up to seven or so."

Mr. Oakley, who belongs to the Calgary club, had to look for 11 characteristics in each bird entered.

He said size and appearance didn't count for points, just song.

Most points in all classes were gained by a bird owned by P. W. Smoother, 946 Runnymede Place.

OF ALL PLACES

By HORACE SUTTON

California's 'Urban Forest'

CARMEL—The oglers and the gogglers have breached the arty fastnesses here by the Pacific. They rumble into town these days like rampaging Visigoths leaving nothing but parking problems, paper cups on the beach and $13 million a year in the shops. Not counting what they drop in hotels, motels, and other bida-a-wee's.

Once the woody redoubt of painters and writers, Carmel has become a sea-washed, sunswept freak. People come for miles around to see the funny place where the long-hairs live. And they still live, the quaint things, without house numbers, mail deliveries, television aerials, undertakers, parlors, bowling alleys, jails, cemeteries, or live music in public places. If you want to die or dance you better go some place else.

Carmel is the only town in California that has not changed its city limits since the First World War. The boundaries enclose a tiny state that measures seven-eighths of a square mile. Within these iron borders live 4,500 citizens, few of whose houses are decorated with paved side walks.

Carmel people strive mightily to preserve their "urban forest" and, since the plague of the oglers, they have taken even deeper to the woods. The woods are carefully preserved in Carmel, where no one may chop down a tree unless the city council arrives in person and en bloc to render a decision. When a tree starts to age the city plants one on either side. Someone once suggested that no new residents be accepted in the village until one of the old ones died.

Both Cypress West—now there's a handle—and the Pine Tree Inn have warmed-over patios, flowered gardens with tables, chairs, and radiant heating glowing from overhead lamps. Camellias are the decoration at Cypress West, yellow pansies and orange trees alongside serpentine brick at Pine Tree Inn. Who expected heaven to be so cultivated?

There is no radiant heating on the beach other than the California sun, but that seems to glow appreciably enough to bring out the locals who nest in the dunes even in the dead of winter, rising occasionally to throw around a football or detach an icicle from an aralobe. But the gray sand and the wind blown cypresses are a tempting arrangement, especially when you throw in the vista of the blue cliffs and those houses sitting there in the coves, numberless, unadorned by TV aerials, and unvisited by the postman.

While wringing its hands over its swarms of house guests, day guests, and passersby, Carmel has meanwhile installed 50 gift shops, two score arts-crafts dens, and two dozen eating places. Strolling along the brick sidewalks of the shopping alleys, one may stumble upon Derek Payne's harbordashery, where all the salesmen wear screaming red blazers.

There are straw shops, Oriental shops, and the House of Sweden. In a Viennese shop five ladies embroider designs in public view. The Little Swiss Cafe which has six tables, decorates its windows with homemade pastries and invites perambulators to come in and try a chocolate esplanade, iced chocolate and whipped cream. At the Village Corner you can sit at an outdoor table any time of the year and chip away on an Oaken Bucket Sundae—four scoops of ice cream, nuts, cherries and a river of goo.

To shelter the wanderers who filter through Carmel, there are now more than 30 hotels and motels in and around the corporate limits. Whimsy runs unbridled in these neighborhoods, where we have the Cheerful Tortoise Motel; the Lamplighters Inn, with its fairy tale cottages; the Pine Tree Inn, chintz as a maiden aunt's menage.

The Normandy Inn, put together by an architect and his wife, an editor of a home-decorating magazine, is a small delight, a maze of patios, potted geraniums, Breton tiles and fireplaces. The rates range from $14 to $20 and breakfast comes free, served in a French provincial kitchen. There is a pool for dunkers.

Both Cypress West—now there's a handle—and the Pine Tree Inn have warmed-over patios, flowered gardens with tables, chairs, and radiant heating glowing from overhead lamps. Camellias are the decoration at Cypress West, yellow pansies and orange trees alongside serpentine brick at Pine Tree Inn. Who expected heaven to be so cultivated?

The shrine is a focal point for pilgrims and tourists, drawing thousands of Japanese and westerners each day.

To the monkey trinity is added "And Grow Gently." It is the second in a series of monkey carvings depicting the cycle of life. They are inscribed on the walls of the Sacred Stable. Tradition says a monkey carving insures the wellbeing of the horses.

This is one of the places where the Shinto-Buddhism followed by most Japanese is evident. Inside the compound are a Shinto torii gate, sacred cistern and oratory, and the Buddhist pagoda, belfry and drum tower.

The 104-foot pagoda bears an outer vermilion lacquer and stands on a bed of stones without foundation. It is supported only by a massive central pillar. There are ochre colored doors on each of the four sides, and the outer walls carry carvings of the 12 signs of the zodiac.

INNER SHRINE

In the Inner Shrine, where many religious rites and instructions are conducted, unbelievably intricate carvings adorn specially chosen wooden pillars and rich tapestries hang from the walls.

To enter the Inner Shrine, it is necessary for the visitor to stop outside and remove his shoes. Literally thousands of pairs of shoes line an area set aside for this purpose.

The shrine, set against a backdrop of great redwoods, was built more than 350 years ago to the memory of Tokugawa Ieyasu, founder of the Tokugawa Shogunate. Admission today is 100 yen (about 28 cents) and another 30-yen donation is expected for admission to the Inner Shrine.

Just outside the entrance is the Mihashi, the sacred bridge across the Daisya River. It was built for use of imperial messengers and other dignitaries on their visits to the shrine.

Ice Worm Festival

If you visit Cordova, Alaska before February 10-11 and feel rumblings and shakings from the hills behind town, don't worry, say Cordova residents. It isn't an earthquake and it isn't an overactive volcano.

It's just the town's pet Ice Worm, stretching and shaking and swishing his 150-foot tail inside a glacier cave.

The beast is slowly awakening from summer hibernation, so the story goes, and he'll be fully awake February 10-11 to march in the grand parade of the Second Annual Cordova Ice Worm Festival.

A Winter Wonderland

BOLZANO, Italy—This fascinating land of sun-kissed valleys and snow-capped mountains is a long-established resort area which North Americans have been slow to discover.

The Province of Bolzano, just south of the famed Brenner Pass, has for centuries been a crossroads for travelers. The castles of the robber barons, now mostly in ruins, still perch atop seemingly inaccessible crags overlooking the valley road.

It has long been a summer and winter playground for Germans and Italians. In recent years, it has been discovered by a growing number of Dutch and English tourists. But the North American tourist, for the most part, has passed it by in favor of such better-known spots as Rome, Florence and Venice.

OLD FORT 'GUARDS' BERMUDA

Pointing its nose into the tourist-famous waters of Bermuda, Fort St. Catherine, a 17th-century bastion, has become one of the resort island's best sightseeing attractions. An extensive restoration program has resulted in some unique displays, among them all of Britain's crown jewels in replica.

ATTRACTS MANY VISITORS IN JAPAN

Ornate Shrine in Land of Beauty

NIKKO, Japan—Nested among rugged peaks and sparkling streams in one of the most splendidly beautiful areas of Japan is Toshogu Shrine, site of the original carving of the "Hear No Evil, Speak No Evil, See No Evil" monkey trinity.

The shrine is a focal point for pilgrims and tourists, drawing thousands of Japanese and westerners each day.

To the monkey trinity is added "And Grow Gently." It is the second in a series of monkey carvings depicting the cycle of life. They are inscribed on the walls of the Sacred Stable. Tradition says a monkey carving insures the wellbeing of the horses.

Mardi Gras in February

Barefoot Indians dancing in a field of burning grass, parades, witchcraft exhibitions, fireworks, grotesque masks and the more usual trimmings of Mardi Gras will be celebrated in hundreds of towns throughout Mexico with the start of carnival in February.

The reign of "Juan Carnaval" begins on the last of the month and continues for eight boisterous days until Ash Wednesday, March 7, when "Juan's" signals the start of solemn religious observances.

Actually, Mexicans jump the gun and most of February is a full-dress preview of carnival, the pre-Latin farewell to things of the flesh.

MANY PROBLEMS

A-Powered Ships Still Years Away

TORONTO (CP)—Practical atomic-powered surface ships may be 15 or 20 years away, a nuclear propulsion expert says.

H. C. Holt, application engineer of Canadian General Electric Company Limited, attached to the civilian atomic power department, was one of three CGE speakers at the annual convention of senior officers of Upper Lakes Shipping Limited.

He said prospects of nuclear propulsion are great, but that problems are almost as great.

Mr. Holt spoke of the nuclear submarines of the United States and the Russian nuclear-powered icebreaker Lenin which has been operating for more than a year. An atomic-drive ship, the N.S. Savannah, is approaching operational status in the U.S., he said.

Some of the problems to be overcome include the weight of the reactor, radiation shielding, disposal of radioactive waste and higher initial cost.

W. A. Wyeth, CGE marine application engineer, spoke of automation aboard ships and looked into the future when ocean-going vessels would use computers programmed to avoid bad storms and adjust the schedule to arrive in port when docking facilities were best.

It's drawing power is evident in the fact that its population of 35,000 is swelled to twice that number each day by visitors.

The Nikko area is popular in summer for mountain climbing, camping, hiking and for skating and skiing. It is surrounded by beautiful woodlands and magnificent waterfalls.

Nikko is within easy reach of Tokyo. The 92-mile journey by fast Japanese train costs about $16 round-trip. It is a drive of approximately three hours over the same distance.

There is a Japanese saying: "You cannot say kekko (beautiful) until you have seen Nikko."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ernie Kovacs, the cigar-chomping comic, was killed early today when his station wagon crashed into a power pole in West Los Angeles, the coroner's office said.

The comedian was thrown from his car, police said, after it skidded on wet pavement on Santa Monica Boulevard.

He suffered extensive head injuries, said a spokesman at the coroner's office, where the body was taken.

Kovacs, 42, was alone at the time of the accident.

Kovacs was married to actress Edie Adams.

He won success in films and on television. On TV his sponsors let him do pretty much as he pleased. His final TV special was done without words.

"There's too much talk on TV," he said.

Associates said Kovacs had spent the evening at the home of director Billy Wilder, his closest Hollywood friend.

ASSEMBLY SWEARS IN KENYATTA

NAIROBI (AP)—Jomo (Burning Spear) Kenyatta, freed last August after nine years in prison on charges of leading Mau Mau terrorist uprisings, was sworn in today as a member of the Kenya Legislative Assembly.

The Wilders heard about the crash on the radio shortly after the comedian had left their home and they rushed to his house to tell Miss Adams. She collapsed on hearing the news and was placed under a doctor's care, informed sources said.

HIT THE JACKPOT

Others at the party were the Dean Martins, Lucille Ball and her new husband, Gary Morton, entertainer Yves Montand and a score of other film stars.

Midsummer Deadline Hinted on Columbia

TIMES OTTAWA BUREAU
OTTAWA—U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall today indicated the U.S. will not wait past midsummer for an end to the Columbia River deadlock.

Mr. Udall, in Ottawa to attend a meeting of the joint U.S.-Canadian committee on trade and economic matters, met Justice Minister Fulton twice at social functions Friday.

The two men were the central figures in a bitter dispute late last year. Mr. Fulton accused Udall of working with B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett to arrange a "sell-out" of B.C. power resources.

VERY AWKWARD

Mr. Udall was asked if he had set a deadline for implementation of the Columbia River treaty, signed a little over one year ago. He said there was no deadline, but added: "If by midsummer this thing is a dispute instead of a treaty, it will put us in a very awkward position. That is all I will say."

The fire destroyed a $4,000 mosaic of Christ and caused $6,000 damage to the church. But Rev. Lawrence F. Spencer, Salvador's first-grade teacher in the church school, hastened to comfort the distraught boy.

Salvador wanted to light a candle to the Baby Jesus before the Nativity scene was dismantled at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. He figured that Friday would be his last chance.

"Your intentions were good, and that's what matters," the priest told him. "And, luckily no one got hurt."

"Four main problems still faced the ministers: Financing of the common farm policy, progressive harmonization of cereal prices, application of escape clauses for fruit and vegetables and length of the transition period for applying the common policy."

WIFE HELD IN HOSPITAL

Man Slain At Saturna

A young Saturna Island man was shot and killed at his Lyall Harbor home Friday between 9:30 and 11:30 p.m.

Victim is William Money, 22, son of W. James Money, road foreman and well-known resident of the island.

Widow of the dead man is under police surveillance in Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital at Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

The tragedy came to light at 11:30 p.m. when Mr. Money's workmates at the lightweight aggregate plant on the island called at his home as usual to take him to work with them.

WOMAN DAZED

They found him dead in his bed, and also in bed was his wife, in a dazed condition and apparently oblivious to what had happened.

They called the dead man's father and RCMP at Ganges.

A coroner's inquiry was held at the Money home at 10 a.m. today, and the police investigation continued.

To the knowledge of Saturna residents, Mr. Money was last seen alive at 9:30 p.m. when he disembarked from the ferry after a day in Victoria.

LOST FIRST SON

He and his 21-year-old wife were described as a "happy, devoted couple." They had lost their first child, but are the parents of a five-month-old son, Gordon.

Neighbors reported Mrs. Money had suffered poor health since the birth of the child, but had been able to take care of the home and family.

It was expected the body would be taken to Ganges.

Parents of the victim have taken the grandchild. Also surviving are a younger brother and sister.

Saturna is the most easterly of the Gulf Islands, lying 25 miles northeast of Victoria, and within a mile of the international boundary. Lyall Harbor is a well-known anchorage, and most of the island residents live close to its shores.

Pact Ends Walkout At Ford

TORONTO (CP)—Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers (CLC) today signed an agreement covering 7,200 hourly paid employees at four Canadian plants.

The three-year agreement ended 10 hours of strike action at plants in Toronto, Windsor and Niagara Falls. The 3,200 employees at the Oakville, Ont., plant jumped the Friday midnight strike deadline to engage in a premature walkout and had been on the picket line since about 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Union officials said swift ratification by membership is expected and that all the employees likely will return to their jobs by Monday morning.

The contract provides for an increase in wages of six cents an hour, or 2½ per cent, each year for the next three years.

Substantial improvements in company-paid insurance plans and pension benefits were also agreed upon.

The chief warned that "as long as this material is sold there will be more loss of life by fire."

Fire officials said the material on the walls was composed of a pressed pulp substance and contained sulphur which gave off fumes when burning.

"If necessary," he said, "we might have to make some adjustments to get the treaty to work." Again he would not elaborate.

Mr. Udall said a dispute between Canada and the U.S. is not going to get power for anyone."

MEET IN WASHINGTON

Allies Prepare For UN Session

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — British and American officials, conferring here since Thursday, were reported today to have narrowed differences between the two countries over UN issues.

Many of the problems discussed relate to issues that will arise in the UN General Assembly, which resumes its sessions next week.

Informants said the British and U.S. representatives agreed Friday that UN Acting Secretary-General U Thant should have a larger staff for dealing with future crises.

The Congo crisis was cited as an example of an emergency into which the United Nations had to move without adequate time for preparation.

U.S. representatives were said to have agreed there are definite limitations on what the United Nations can do. The most immediate of these is the limitation of money available to it.

SUPPORTS BOND ISSUE

The United States is supporting a UN bond issue to provide financing especially for UN forces in the Congo and in the Middle East.

Like the U.S., Britain has been sharply critical of what its officials consider the irresponsibility of UN members who vote for the expenditure of funds without intending to help pay the cost.

The discussions here also covered various colonial questions, including forthcoming UN debate on the future of Portuguese Angola, an African territory that was the scene of violent uprisings against Portuguese rule last year.

The final subjects scheduled for discussion by the two groups of officials today were outer space problems, including problems of communication.

U.S. Pullout From UN Proposed

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep. Ariz.) says there is no reason why the United States should continue participation in the United Nations.

"The idea was wonderful," he said, "but the world is not ready for it."

He said he always had been charitably inclined to the United Nations but, he added, "since the Communists can stop any peace movement, the United Nations becomes more ineffective."

Speaking in the home town of the leader of the militantly conservative John Birch Society Friday night, Goldwater said he did not know of one member of that group who is in the White House.

But, he added, "the Americans for Democratic Action, who talk about peaceful co-existence, are in the White House close to the president. There are 31 members of the ADA there."

"I am not worried about the extreme right wing in our country," Goldwater said. "They are not in government in Washington. I am worried about the extremists to the left who are in government."

Belmont is the home town of Robert Welch, founder and head of the John Birch Society which has headquarters here.

TABLE-TOP TOTEM ART is displayed by carver Henry Hunt who is making piece specially for the Provincial Museum. He has been carving and selling the 18-inch totems privately and museum officials commissioned him to do one for them as an example of his art style. Other government departments have received them from him in the past. Totem shown needs only painting before being placed in the museum. At end of month he will resume doing the pieces on commission and for the retail market. Asking price varies between $50 and $70.

New Trial Ordered For Seattle Judge

Boat Raffle Judgment Reserved

Judgment was reserved in B.C. Supreme Court here Friday afternoon in an action for breach of contract against Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

James Meyer, operator of Exhibition Advertising Enterprises Ltd. and Western Fair Services Ltd., Vancouver, claimed damages from profits obtained by the Jaycees in a raffle for a cabin cruiser at last year's Jaycee industrial fair.

Through his counsel, Thomas Marshall, he claimed that under a contract with the Jaycees he should have conducted the lottery.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan reserved judgment at the close of the three-day hearing. For the Jaycees, Don Anderson claimed that the terms of the contract did not cover the raffle for cabin cruiser.

Assessment Appeals Likely to Speed Up

Appeals against increased Victoria assessments so far number only 15, but considerably more are expected before deadline is reached at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

More than 100 property owners have questioned the increases, most of whom have been reassured by verbal explanations, spokesman said.

Increases, felt throughout Greater Victoria this year, are the result of a new assessment formula passed by the legislature last year.

In 1961, 42 appeals against increases were heard in Victoria.

Court of appeal this year, consisting of ex-major Scurll, Coun. Joseph Casey and lawyer Kenneth Murphy, will sit Feb. 5.

A five-man court of appeal on local improvement assessments will sit Monday at 10 a.m., dealing with Victoria city ratepayers.

ANCIENT BASTION SQUARE COURTHOUSE SOON TO BE EMPTY RELIC

Victoria's old courthouse on Bastion Square is fast approaching the end of its 73-year history begun in 1889. Within the next few weeks staff and equipment will be moved into the spacious new building on Cathedral Hill, and the upheaval process is well under way. Above (from left) are Percy McLaren, head janitor, straightens up papers in the Assize Court. He's had 24 years' service in the old building;

Sheriff Eric Wilkinson (20 years' service), shows ancient ballot box used for picking jury panel since earliest days, and Bert Beaveridge, an employee since 1931, mans unique split-level elevator for which courthouse is famous—you go in at one door and emerge by another. Most of courthouse equipment will be moved by Jan. 30. (Times Photos by Irving Strickland.)

RAIN OR MOIST SNOW EXPECTED FOR SUNDAY

A weather system developing to the north of here is expected to give rain or wet snow by Sunday afternoon or evening, weatherman William Mackie said today.

A small storm expected to give snow here this afternoon instead produced a small flurry this morning, then gave a fall at Nanaimo which had reached one inch at Cassidy Airport by press time.

MONTE ROBERTS

There has been a great deal of loose talk lately about amalgamation in these parts.

The new mayor of Victoria, for one, and the reeve of Saanich, for another, appear to favor a union with one language, one set of laws, and one tax collector.

I have even heard it said that when the mayor of Victoria meets the reeve of Saanich on the street, the salutation is "Greetings, Gate, let's amalgamate."

This may be all very well for the chaps in Victoria and Saanich, and, for all I know, for the blokes in Esquimalt.

But for us citizens—pardon, residents, of Oak Bay—amalgamation is something which simply isn't done.

I mean, really.

(Perhaps I should explain I am just a resident of Oak Bay, not a citizen, because I have only been back here for six months after violating the continuous residence clause. However, Oak Bay has been kind enough to issue a permanent visa for my border crossing card, so I am bold enough to consider myself an almost-citizen. Perhaps. Sometime. Eventually?)

Nevertheless, I have the temerity to speak for Oak Bay on the question of amalgamation.

It is admitted it might be a jolly fine idea to have Saanich, Victoria, Esquimalt, and Oak Bay (notice how Oak Bay is listed last? We're modest out this way) operate as a single municipal unit.

But is amalgamation the answer?

Heavens, no.

Annexation, perhaps. Amalgamation, never.

If the circumstances and conditions appear right, at the right time, and possibly eventually, Oak Bay MIGHT I say "might" advisedly—consent to annex Victoria, Saanich, and Esquimalt.

Thus bringing a touch of civilization to the neighboring colonies.

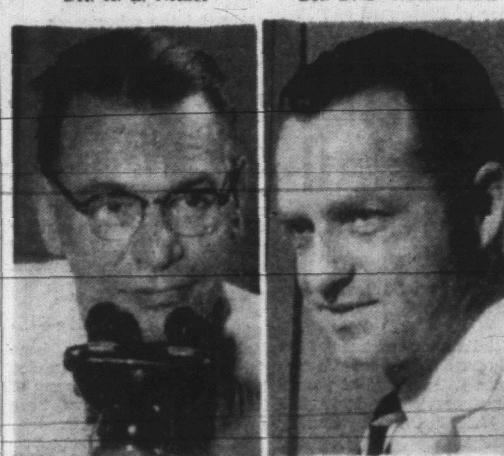

Even as an almost-citizen, pro-temp, acting, temporary, unpaid, I feel I should point out this fact, which is fast becoming a tradition:

Two most recent mayors of Victoria have had the good sense to maintain their residences in Oak Bay.

As soon as the reeve of Saanich and the reeve of Esquimalt follow this same sensible course, Oak Bay may possibly consider annexation of Victoria, Saanich, and Esquimalt.

But don't come around here talking about amalgamation.

Smallpox Panic Spreads

LONDON (AP) — A fourth victim of smallpox died today as fears of a serious general outbreak of the disease spread to a third British city.

Michael Gibson, two, died in a hospital at Birstall, near Leeds—not far from the city of Bradford, where a 49-year-old woman and a 40-year-old man already had died.

The smallpox scare began when Ismat Khan, a Pakistani, arrived in London from Karachi suffering from the disease on Christmas Day. He died Jan. 7.

Four other children and a nurse at the hospital where the Gibson baby died were believed to have contracted the disease. In Bradford seven suspected cases were under observation. In London, Darrhel Khan, 21, sister-in-law of Ismat Kahn, was in hospital as another suspect.

Health authorities said no clues so far had been found to explain the outbreaks in Bradford and Birstall.

Pact Ends Walkout At Ford

TORONTO (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers (CLC) today signed an agreement covering 7,200 hourly-paid employees at four Canadian plants.

The three-year agreement ended 10 hours of strike action at plants in Toronto, Windsor and Niagara Falls. The 3,200 employees at the Oakville, Ont., plant jumped the Friday midnight strike deadline to engage in a premature walkout and had been on the picket line since about 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Gavin threw Floyd and Eugene from a second-storey window into the waiting arms of neighbors who were aroused by cries for help. He and Douglas then made their way out the window.

The chief warned that "as long as this material is sold there will be more loss of life by fire."

Fire officials said the material on the walls was composed of a pressed pulp substance and contained sulphur which gave off fumes when burning.

His Intentions Were Good'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Salvador Salinas, 6, feels a little better today because the priest said he meant well, even if he did set the church on fire.

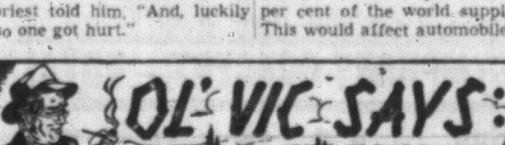

Salvador wanted to light a candle to the Baby Jesus before the Nativity scene was dismantled at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. He figured that Friday would be his last chance.

"After school I decided to place the candle, but I didn't know where," he related. "So I put it in the crib. Then I went out. Outside I discovered I forgot my lunch box near the altar so I went back in. Flames were all over the place."

The fire destroyed a $4,000 mosaic of Christ and caused $6,000 damage to the church. But Rev. Lawrence F. Spencer, Salvador's first-grade teacher in the church school, hastened to comfort the distraught boy.

"Your intentions were good and that's what matters," the priest told him. "And, luckily no one got hurt."

Trade talks often seem to start with tradin' compliments and end up tradin' punches.

A full-scale gold rush wd make a wonderful centennial feature if somebody c'd just find th' gold.

Wouldn't mind gittin' assessed double in Saanich if th' place wuz really twice as good j' live in.

U.S. Members Welcome Statement

"United States members welcomed the statement, and pointed out that the U.S. had consistently supported these objectives for many years."

There was no mention of the fact that the new tariff cutting proposals announced by President Kennedy Thursday are directed almost entirely at reaching an accommodation with the booming European Common Market.

What President Kennedy proposes is the elimination of tariffs between the U.S. and the Common Market nations of which the U.S. and Common Market countries produce 80 per cent of the world supply. This would affect automobiles machines and hard goods, some electric appliances and a wide range of other goods.

He also wants Congress to give the administration power to reduce up to 50 per cent the tariff on other goods.

At the conclusion of the talks, U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said Canada would substantially benefit from such reductions in the tariff between the U.S. and the Common Market: since U.S. trade policy is generally based on the most-favored-nation principle.

However, it is considered extremely unlikely, in view of past statements by the U.S. president, that Canada will be given a "free ride" without counter-concessions.

Here is what the communiqué had to say about the Common Market: "The committee noted the current negotiations between Britain and the European Economic Community and the widespread consequences which British entry into the EEC would have for the rest of the world."

"The committee recognized the great importance of the Commonwealth as a unique association of free nations

Centennial Flashback...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

JANUARY 13

Merchants were warned by police that the Sunday closing law will be strictly enforced in the future, with no exceptions. Complaints had been received that several merchants were openly flaunting the law.

With the thermometer standing well below freezing, passengers and freight from steamers arriving in Esquimalt Harbor reached Victoria in horse-drawn sleighs. Roads were reported in excellent condition.

Voters' lists closed at 4 p.m., and those who had not registered by that time were not allowed to vote in any elections held in 1862. Rental of $5 month for six months qualified a voter, and owners of real estate worth $50 or 20 acres in extent were also qualified.

The bark Anna G. Barnard passed down the Strait bound for San Francisco with a cargo of coal from Nanaimo.
